bridging the gap

In May 2022, Dayton Children's revealed plans for a new free-standing pediatric mental health care center to expand services and serve the current youth mental health crisis.

getting upstream

Dayton Children's expanded behavioral health care to get ahead of the mental health crisis. By embedding counselors in pediatricians' offices and student resiliency coordinators in schools, access to help is easier and faster.

news-making moments

community support

Hosted a mass COVID-19 vaccination clinic for children ages 5- to 11-years-old to enable thousands of families to have a safer holiday season.

innovation

Launched the Center for the Female Athlete, a one-of-a-kind program focusing on holistic care to empower female athletes to become the best version of themselves.

striving for optimal health

Announced the new Center for Health Equity to add resources, research, support and strategy into better identifying the reasons why a child is not thriving and working with the community to provide support earlier.

new services

Started ophthalmology as a new service line, including an eye glass shop with the widest selection of pediatric frames in the area that can be made onsite in about an hour.

new spaces

Opened a primary care pediatric clinic at The Hope Center for Families. The initiative co-locates education, child care, medical care and employment support to empower low-income families of greater Dayton to achieve and sustain self-sufficiency.
